

Who We Are

An inquiry into the nature of the self; beliefs and values; personal, physical, mental, social and spiritual health.

Central idea relationships develop and maintain emotional and social well-being

Function, Connection, responsibility

Skills

Social skills, communication skills

Dear Readers,

Our first graders are exploring their transdisciplinary theme “Who we are” An inquiry into the nature of the self; beliefs and values; personal, physical, mental, social and spiritual health; human relationships including families, friends, communities, cultures, rights and responsibilities; what it means to be a human.

Our students learn the role of family members. (Function) Was the first line of inquiry that students enjoyed learning about.

Students were able to enhance some attitudes, values and attributes during this unit of inquiry.

Students had a chance interview their family members and share the role of each member in the family.

Students shared stories and do some simple activities remotely .

Students then were more than happy to ask questions and share their pictures with their family .In addition, each one has different story with the family expressing how relationships affect our identity. Some students think it'll be fun to help, but other students think it will be hard.

Mothers are the pillars in the family. They offer their love, help, and happiness to her children unconditionally in all times.

Students provided with resources (pictures) of new social media programs, they were asked to share ideas which maintain a healthy relationship between each other. Students experience the remote learning at the beginning of this year in many ways as oral discussion or written in Nearpod and ClassDojo.

Students share their pets as friends!

Being unique were under spot because each child express himself and identify his character with an IB profile attribute; As caring, risk-taker, thinker, etc....

Students watched videos about examples of what makes us special and unique? (Responsibility). They understand that each one in the family is different and leading a role that completes family tasks.

